2. (1) 【答案】Friday

【解析】 Attention, please, boys and girls!

This Friday, we will have the school open day. First, let me tell you the program for the open day. Your parents are supposed to arrive at the east gate of the school, and the teachers will meet them there at 9:00. And at 9:15, we will lead them to visit the classroom. At 10:00, they will begin looking at our class projects in the hall. Teachers will be with your parents all the way, so they can talk about your life at school. Lunch will begin at 12:00 in the dining hall. Your parents will eat with us. After the lunch break, that is, at 1:30 in the afternoon, they will visit the library and the new lab. At 2:30, they will enjoy a wonderful show. That's the last activity of the open day.

Now, I am going to give you the invitations. Please take them home to your parents. Thank you!

3. (1) 【答案】A

【解析】本题考查细节理解。根据 They're online courses run by universities, so you can study from home, whenever you want.可知，运用 MOOC 可以在任何时间学习，陈述确定，本题答案为 certain。

A: So, have you decided what to do when you leave school yet?

B: Well, I might do a university degree, but I don't know what to do. I can't ask my parents to pay for a course that I'm not totally sure about.

A: Have you thought about a MOOC? A massive open online course? They're online courses run by universities, so you can study from home, whenever you want. MOOCs are usually free and anybody can sign up to one. There are often thousands or even hundreds of thousands of students on each course!

B: Wow! Sounds good. How do the universities cover their costs?

A: Err...I'm not sure. Perhaps they sell advertising. Is thousands of people visit their website every day, maybe they make money through adverts.

B: Hmm...It must be expensive. If you write an essay, don't they need to pay professor to assess it?

A: No, students check and grade each other's work. The university tells you how to do it, so you can learn by marking someone else's work.

B: I don't know. I think it's better to get a professor to check your work. Also, you usually have to pass exams to start a regular university course, so you feel the need to finish it. It must be hard to stay motivated with a MOOC.

A: I did read that only about 10% of people who start MOOCs actually finish them. I suppose people sign up for things on the internet all the time if they're free. But 10% of 100,000 students is still a lot. I'm sure it's made a difference in many people's lives.

B: Yeah, I guess you're right. Maybe I will give one a try...

Tina: I'm not going!

Father: Why not? What's wrong?

Tina: Well, I don't have a present to give him any more.

Father: What do you mean? I thought you'd got him a new MP3 player. I'm sure he'll really like it.

Tina: Yes, I did, and it was expensive, too. But I saw him at school today, and guess what his mum and dad bought for him?

Father: Oh ... right.

Tina: And it's a much better one, of course.

Father: Sure, okay ... well, did you keep the receipt?

Tina: Yes ...

Father: All right, then. Let's go to the electronic store on the way to Jason's house, and exchange the MP3 player for something else the same price.

Tina: That's a great idea, Dad. Thanks!

【解析】M: Hi, could you tell me why there are so many red clothes in the shop? I don't like red.

W: Well, in China the colour red is often associated with happy things like joys and celebrations.

M: Do you mean people like to be dressed in red on happy occasions?

W: Exactly. For example, some people here wear red wedding dresses. What about this colour in your country?

M: It's the opposite. In America, red mostly represents bad things, such as danger or violence.

W: Oh, really? So the same colour may stand for quite different things in different countries.

M: You're quite right. I have never expected it to be so different.

W: So we should be careful in choosing colours. Once I was in South Africa. When I saw many people wearing red clothes, I thought there must be a wedding.

M: What really happened then?

W: To my surprise, they were holding a funeral ceremony!
